MEMORANDUM FOR THE FILES

23 May 1974

SUBJECT: Discussion of Facsimile Equipment

1. On 17 May 1974, Sgt. Steve Young of the White House Communications Agency visited the Covert Communications Facility for the purpose of discussing facsimile equipments, a subject of mutual interest to both parties.

2. Over the past five years, WHCA has been using the Graphic Science DEX-1 facsimile equipment in support of presidential travel; and since that particular model is being discontinued by Graphic Science, Sgt. Young has been assigned the task of finding a suitable replacement which would be portable and used only to process unclassified information. Therefore, our discussions were confined to the results of our recent evaluation of the Graphic Science DEX-581, Xerox 400, and the 3M 603 facsimile equipments in the back-to-back mode of operation.

3. Sgt. Young was advised that our immediate goals were for a TEMPEST free facsimile equipment; and that to readily and economically achieve this goal, we were in the process of having fabricated a RFI cabinet in which the facsimile equipment would be operated.

4. For their long term objectives the WHCA is presently having a suitcase-size facsimile equipment developed for them by the Naval Civilian Engineering Laboratory at Port Hueneme, California, which is to meet TEMPEST and will be used for secure communications. When available (time frame unknown), it will replace their present DACOM facsimile units which are not too portable (450 lbs).

5. Having a common interest in small portable facsimile equipments, it was agreed to keep mutually informed on the availability of such equipment which might fit our individual requirements.
